

What is video education?

The viducate network has produced an extensive collection of papers focussing on the theme of video and media education. The papers include conceptual ideas, an insight into European perspectives and a section with best practise examples pointing out how video education can be put into practise across different educational sectors.

We have a limited amount of free printed versions, but you will need to cover the postage. Please contact us if you are interest in a copy. Please pass the document on to your colleagues and let us know if you are interested in a future publication of similiar kind.

- viducate publication

 - viducate publication summary

